Document 6: Industrial and Business Parks and Investment Land

Access to serviced land is one of the main non-tax incentives UIA offers. This document explains UIA's role in developing industrial and business parks and how investors can request land.

UIA's Role: Providing serviced land is part of UIA's mission, and setting up and developing Industrial and Business Parks is one of its stated objectives (see Document 1). UIA was tasked to develop 27 Industrial and Business Parks around the country. The aims are to create more jobs, make land for investment easier to access, introduce new research, technologies and skills development, and boost Uganda's exports to increase the country's revenue base.

Namanve Industrial Park: Namanve is one of the parks where UIA engages its investors. UIA has held Investors' General Meetings there, where URA officers have answered investor questions on tax exemptions, withholding tax and incentives (see Document 5).

Forms for Land: Two forms are available in the UIA Download Centre:

- Application for allocation of investment land in UIA's business parks.
- A form for informing UIA of potential land available for investment.

Before You Apply: Check the allocation form for its exact requirements, and see Document 2 for company registration and licensing. Industrial park location can also affect the income tax exemption thresholds described in Document 5.

A Warning About Land Documents: UIA does not issue land titles and does not require the public to hand over original land titles or other sensitive documents (see Document 3).

For current availability, pricing and park-specific details, contact UIA directly. Contact details are in Document 1.
